

ICS4U7-3B Internal Assessment Appendix B

Proposal:Problem:

Private music teachers have long aided students in reaching their potential in musical education and careers. However, keeping track of all their pupils and lessons can become overwhelming and stressful, especially on top of personal musical occupations teachers may have (such as orchestral and chamber music). Thus, the problem these instructors face may be the hectic information overload that they are often expected to retain.

Solution:

To solve the issues arising from such busy careers, a program that acts as an organizer can be the solution. With features that allow the creation of a calendar, a storage tab for payment records or refunded lessons, and inventory of student's names, contact information, and educational progress, this program will facilitate the organization of music teachers' jobs.